WALT publish a fable.

One cold day, a rude hare decided to challenge the calm tortoise for a race and the hare said it boastfully "You are so slow it will take you ~~weeks~~ weeks to get to the finish line!" said the hare annoyingly. "Oh you think your faster than me well lets have a race!" asked the kind tortoise, calmly. And the amazing tortoise and arrogant hare had there race on the beautiful grass of the the thick forest.

They chose the fox as the empire and the ~~boosy~~ <sup>bossy</sup> hare laughed so hard also the fox proudly said "3,2,1 go!" and the rude hare took off leaving the tortoise far behind. After a while, the lazy hare took a nap but suddenly the mean hare saw the tortoise far ahead.

So the unkind hare took off and when he got to the finish line the kind tortoise was waiting for him all ready there so the hare had to forgive the ~~tortoise~~ tortoise and he said "Sorry!" also the tortoise said "It's okay Hare!" and the moral of the story is slow and steady wins the ~~the~~ race and don't judge anybody by their weakness.
