WALT publish a fable.

One sunny day in the morning a tortoise decided to have a beautiful race. The mean hare said "your so slow you cant get any where!" Said the tortoise "is that so well then lets have a race." "if you say im slow" said the clever tortoise. "stupid" said the surprised hare "I'll beat you easily dont cry when you lose" said the mean hare.

They started the race and the hare was really really fast and zoomed off but said half way "haha haha poor thing he is so slow I will have a nap well I wait" but he slept for too long.

When he woke up he said "nope" the tortoise after took over he said he rushed quickly to still try and win but it was no use the tortoise was already there waiting for him. "I'm sorry" said the hare "you won fair and square and the moral is dont judge someone by their weakness."
