

By:Kyla

The sky, which had lots of different shades, set with an amber finish. Leisurely, the moon rose as the night fell. Slowly the grass swayed in the breeze near the river bank.

As silent as an empty room, the frogs slept calmly on their murky green lily pads. Out of nowhere, the peace was disturbed by a frog levitating into the dark misty night. Surprisingly the other frogs then began to rise too.

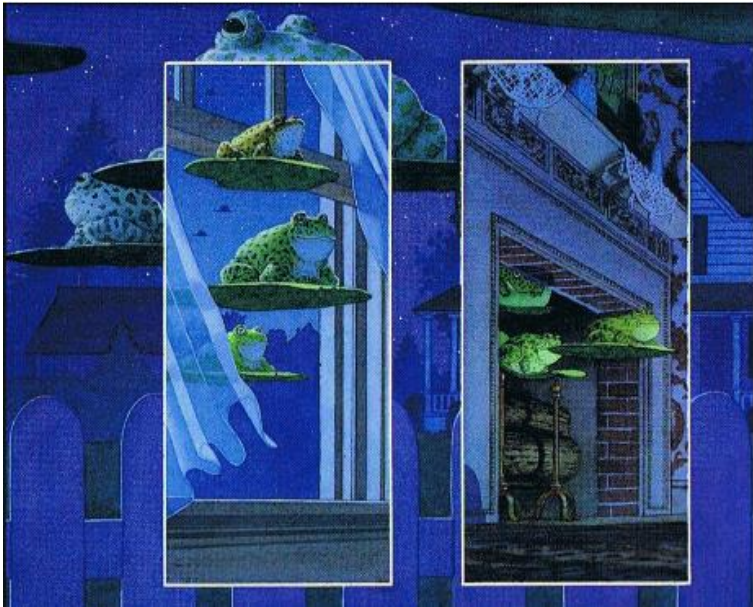

The frogs tumbled and turned as they soared through the night sky. In the distance, they spotted the lights of a near by town. Swooping towards the town, the frogs interrupted the crows sitting on the power line. The crows flew away in terror as they were harassed by the frogs. Now bored the frogs continued into the town exploring houses and gardens until they spotted one with the lights on.

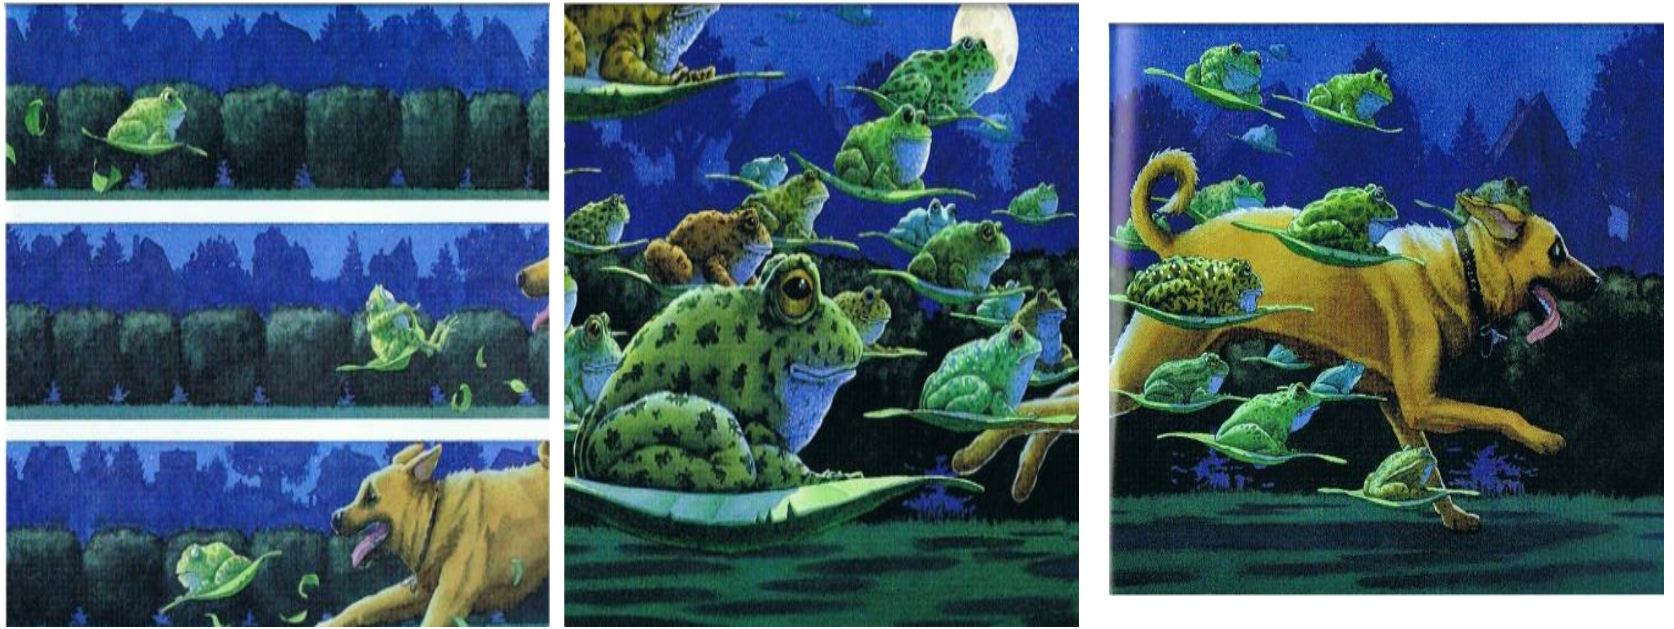

A man (ready to eat) sat down at his at his table. Out of the corner of his eye, he noticed movement outside of his window. The frogs, on murky green lily pads, soared and swooped through the garden.

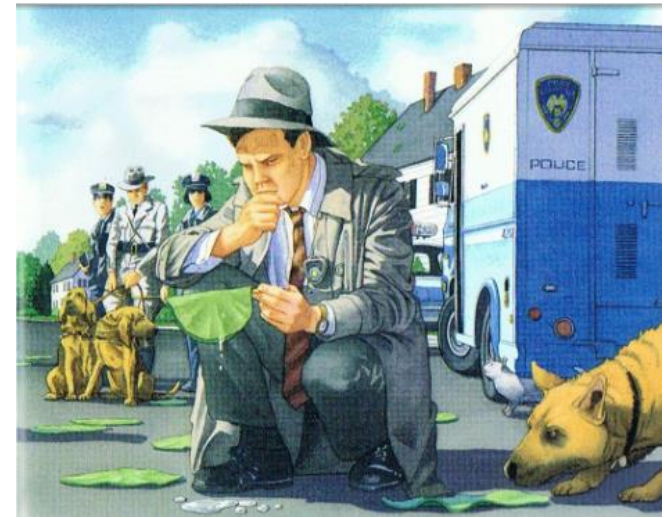

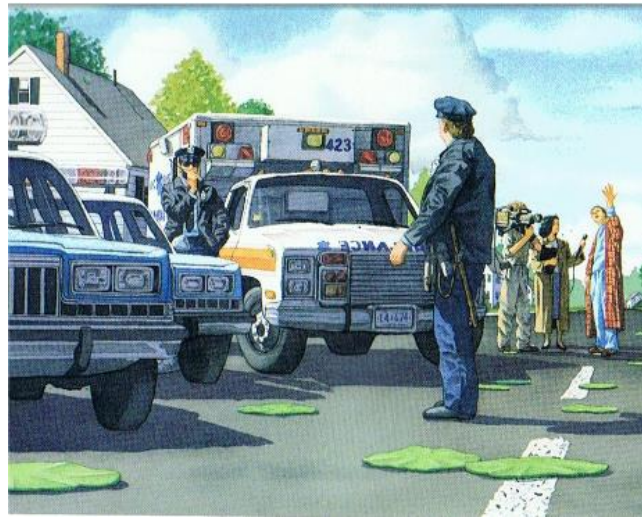

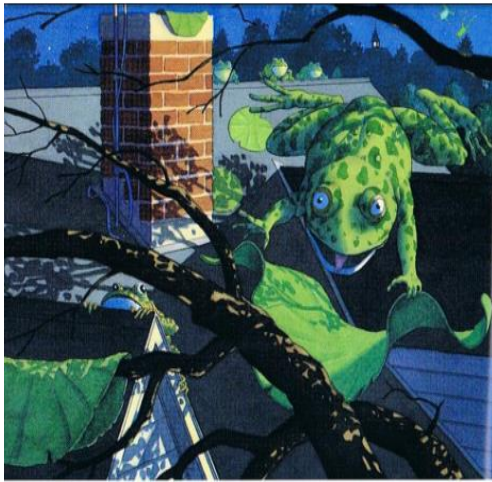

Like superhero's, the rebellious frogs broke free from the snow white sheets. Suddenly they were off flying through the peculiar town again. They tumbled nosily through the air looking to harass their next victim.

Inquisitively, the frogs flew in the next house they found. A grey head woman was sleeping calmly. The granny was slumped in her chair: she was absolutely exhausted. The frogs kept searching until they found a robot-like contraption. Determined to work the strange invention they fiddled with the remote control. Mesmerised by what they were seeing, they watched the whole programme.

After watching T.V for a while, they flew out into the back garden. Suddenly, they were chased by a hungry dog. they zoomed away from him. Regrouping they turned and headed straight for the dog, scaring him away, they laughed heartily.

Catastrophe struck; all the frogs started losing their unusual powers. Early the next day, the confused detective began searching for evidence to figure out what had happened the night before. Shocked, alarmed and astonished, the T.V news reporters couldn't believe what they were seeing (is this true?). Amazed, they interviewed a man who proclaimed he had seen flying animals. Next Tuesday at 7:55am, a bizarre, intriguing and similar thing began to happen...