

Love of my life,

I need you to kill Duncan or I shall never live in peace.

Do it for us! Thou art so brave. I have constantly remained faithful to you and always will be.

Now thou shall seize the opportunity, for your loyal, loving wife.

Imagine the power, sitting comfortably on the velvet throne. Me right by you, clutching your hand with the beautiful crown on my head. It is your duty as Thane of Cawdor to do the best for Scotland and it's people. They want out with Duncan and in with Macbeth. Besides imagine the lush riches.

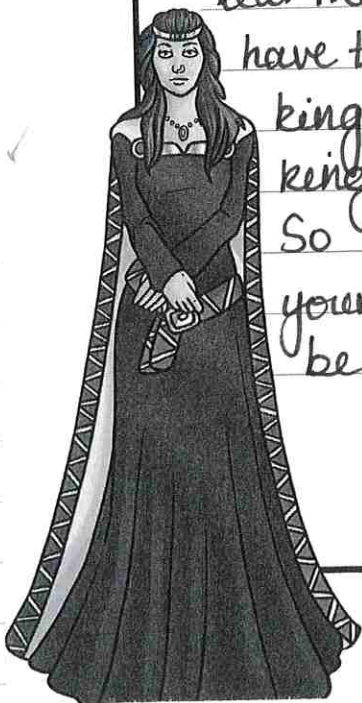

Don't you want to rule? It is as simple as that.

I would be devoted to you forever if you do. Keep this in mind, we both play parts in the relationship.

YOU DESERVE THIS!

You should never deny your destiny. It would tear me to bits seeing you fail even though you have the potential and opportunity to become king. So many people would kill to become king, which is all you have to do.

So darling please just be honest with yourself, you know you must do this. You will be an amazing king, make the right -

- choice and don't disappoint me. You are denying your destiny and it will happen anyway so it won't change no matter what you do. The people of Scotland will understand so please dear, be the brave, strong man who I married. My patience is running low and your marriage is on the line here. You know I don't have the courage to do it myself. Now, as soon as you have made your decision, tell me, and you shall finally be the man I need you to be.
Love your loyal wife x x
