

Dear Fa,

I have still been processing the day you left me to continue life alone without your help. I feel unsafe not being in your presence. I'm still learning to overcome my fear of being ~~slain~~ slaughtered by the possessed bear. I'm still wondering if everything you told me is real, even though I didn't understand much.

You're a fantastic father and leader and will always be a good friend. You're the reason I have been able to stay strong and never give up when it comes to fleeing or escaping danger. I have kept both our memories and your knife safe. I use everything you have taught me to survive, but, what about the things you haven't told me? What's right from wrong, things that could help me on this treacherous journey? What does it all mean?

Fa, I really had my hopes up of you being my guide. If no one has ever been there why am I on this quest? I don't even know what it is. Where am I to find my guide? Do I lead the guide or is the guide supposed to help me? What will happen to the bear if I do complete the mission - will it be gone forever?

I wish you were here
toran.

Well done Sugana.

To my Fa,

I cannot believe all this happened so quickly, I'm all alone now. Without you I don't think I can survive. Also a possessed bear surrounded me but I escaped. It didn't try to kill me. I have so many questions to ask you. You died too early. I'm just a kid. I can't do this alone.

You were the only person in my life. When you gave me the knife, I felt like gilling the ocean with my tears. All I have left is this knife; if I lose this, I lose it all. Life will be more of a nightmare alone. You're telling me to go on a mission to a place I know nothing of. It happened so quickly. I still have so many questions. I'll try and complete your task, Fa.

I'm still worried about going to this unknown mountain. No one knows anything about this mountain. I have no idea where to begin. I never thought sitting under a tree all alone would be this peaceful; I remember all
