Neurodiversity Week

Dear Parents and Carers,

This week is Neurodiversity Week. At Cypress Primary School we have some members of our staff, pupil and parent community who are 'neurodiverse'. This is an umbrella term used to describe alternative thinking styles such as Dyslexia, Dyspraxia, Dyscalculia, Autism and ADHD. Regardless of any diagnosis, neurodiversity is about recognising those who think differently.

We have been made aware of some courses that parents can access for free, if they're interested in learning more. Please click this link to look at the timetable of events running this week and to register: <https://www.neurodiversityweek.com/events>

This website also has some useful parent resources:

Kind regards,

Ms McLelland
