

A dream

By James T. Dunne

Mood → I was a deep sleep, the moon whispering to catch a raft to make a break in a sparkling lake to rest till sunset so its illuminent crescent can slice the night away so next time it can make another celestial array.