Dear Sir / Madam

I have an issue I would like to inform you about. Our friends, the Varmints, are in serious danger from the others and they have invaded these peaceful homes. Without your help these innocent creatures could soon become extinct. The Varmints are also very helpful since they have started researching about plants and examining them.

Dwelling in a peaceful environment, these harmless creatures can only survive by farming so they have to rely on their habitat to survive. Without their land to grow their crops they will soon become extinct. How would you feel?

The pollution level has risen and the scent of the fragrant, sweet air has faded away. To take its spot a filthy unhealthy smell. Plants can't grow because of the towering buildings that block the bright rays of the sunlight. All the bright colored birds have fled away as they can not survive in this new environment. No flowers grow so the bees can't survive as they have no pollen from the beautiful flowers that were once there.

All I ask is for you to help our Varmint friends.
Relocate the Varmints and make sure the others don't come back. I know this is precarious but they don't deserve to suffer because of the I readers.

Yours Sincerely Hari Hunter
