

Dear Sir/Madam,
My names Bob, I'm a resident of Croydon. I'm writing to you because my house is being destroyed. These evil varmints are taking over our peaceful land full of plants, into these gigantic buildings which disturb our land.

Before these treacherously vile varmints arrived, life was sweet, the bees buzzed loudly as my family played in the wonderful field. Smelling plants to check their perfection, we laughed and giggled as we enjoyed our time, not realising it was our last few steps there.

Now, our land is loud, stressful as these varmints bang and clash to make this vile city. The pollution is atrocious and the dust is taking away our most valuable and expensive plants. These evil varmints are leaving us in distraught.

If this behaviour carries on, our kind might go eradicate, we're not safe in this habitat and we need our plants back. The future could be very dangerous if you don't do anything about it immediately. We're in danger and are urgent for your help. What would you do if this was your house? ~~This~~ This act should be permanently illegal. We really need you to do something before something bad happens.

Please help us...!

Raise awareness!

I hope to see you soon!

Your sincerely,

L. Bob
