

Dear Sir/Madam,

I am Rosa, a member of the community. I am writing to inform you about the problems that us, as a community now face. As a deeply concerned citizen, I feel the need to tell you that a major crisis is unfolding. A menacing army of horrible, obnoxious creatures now reign. These monsters have turned our calm, beautiful fields into a noisy, polluted city. How are you allowing them to get away with this? It needs to stop!

Before the creatures invaded this world, our home, we would watch the elegant white doves soar above the buzzing bees and the beautiful, gussy clouds. Everyone used to be content and cheerful. The sky was bright and blue. Our yellow flowers would sway in the warm, summer breeze. We used to be able to hear the birds humming their tunes. Why couldn't it stay that way? Could it ever return to being like that?

Now, the clouds - dull and grey - hang dark overhead as they watch what these disgraceful monstrosities have turned our world into. Do you think this is a joke? Well it's not. We've lost hundreds and thousands of flowers because of them. In fact we've lost hundreds and thousands of everything!

If they stay, our home will be fully destroyed!

By the time they leave, we might not even have a home! This cannot continue. Are you even taking this seriously.

To save our planet, I recommend we start a protest explaining why they should leave. I also think a law needs to be made saying that no warrants are permitted in this city. But at the end of the day, it's up to you what happens to them. Is this really how you want our city to be like? Their so loud we can't even think. We can't keep on living like this! I am hoping that you take this seriously and do something about it.

Thanks you for taking your time reading this letter. I hope you now see things in a different light.

Yours sincerely,

Rosa.
